I am interested in helping students and working towards reforming Indian politics. I love writing. Writing is a form of communication that has the ability to move readers and to inspire emotional and intellectual responses. It is a form of art that takes both time and imagination. I write on a range of topics with a focus on the political economy of health, occupational health, gender and the arts. Think of a person who has designed an idea, or how an artist has captured an image. Those images and ideas are immediately uploaded to the internet, and people pay for the privilege of downloading those images. From the time we put a photograph on the web, until the moment we print out our photo, it has been digitally modified. Sometimes, someone is paid to modify the image, but most of the time, a photo editor might be modifying the photo even if they don't actually get paid for the work. However, despite having a steady income, we decided in November 2015 that we wanted to explore a more 'realistic' option, and so we moved to Delhi for nearly half a year. It is now over a month since we arrived, and while the air quality is better than Delhi, it is still terrible (watch video to see why). Q: How can I print a PNG image from Windows to an Epson LQ-280 printer? I've seen a couple of answers for this, like this one: how to print an image to a lq-280. One says to print with an Epson app, but I don't see this for Windows 8. The Windows 8 printer dialog box is confusing. I don't see a "PNG/JPEG" option anywhere in there. The fonts in the print options are different from what I'm used to - do I need to select other fonts? Accuracy of coronary artery calcium score measured by two three-dimensional intravascular ultrasound systems: Rotarex versus Acuson. The accuracy of coronary artery calcium scoring is important for risk assessment and serial follow-up in patients with coronary artery disease (CAD). We compared the accuracy of two new systems by measuring the number of coronary artery plaques on both intracoronary ultrasound (IUS) images and coronary computed tomographic angiograms. We obtained 99 left-anterior-descending (LAD), 97 right-coronary-cephalic (RCA), 83 left-circumflex (LCX), and 99 right-mural-proximal-septal (RMS) LAD IUS images and 96 RCA, 71 LCX, and 99 RMS IUS images in 53 patients (33 men, 20 women, mean age 65 +/- 10 years, mean body-mass index 27 +/- 4 kg/m(2)). All patients underwent coronary computed tomographic angiography (CTA) within 1 month of IUS. Per segment, a calcium scoring value was derived from the absolute number of low-attenuating plaque lesions in 8 mm segment plaques or from the absolute number of 3-mm segment plaques. A calcium score value was also generated by multiplying the number of coronary arteries with any low-attenuating plaque in the respective vessel by the vessel-specific calcium scoring method of kappa coefficient correlation (ROC), visual estimation of absolute plaque size, and
