What's New In?

Text Compressor is a simple text encryption application. It aims at helping people remain anonymous in various situations where an email address is not available or it's something that one would not wish to disclose. The program is a.NET based software that runs on all major Windows versions from XP to 8. Although, it can be run on Windows Server, you should have.NET Framework installed on the server and the user account of the respective server that is going to use the program. This way it will run the application fine without any issues. Usage: Just download the appropriate version of the program and run it. It can be run on the go as it is a portable application. It only takes care of text messages as the software doesn't support other file formats. The user can manually add the IP of the computer on which the program will be used. It can be easily done via a simple text box. The application makes use of TCP/IP port 8080. It will ask for the web address of the server from which you want to fetch the text to be encrypted. You have to add the data that you want to encrypt to the application manually. This can be done by providing the text that you want to encrypt in the text field, along with the IP address from which the application will run. Once you've input the desired text, hit the Compress button, and the application will analyze the input text and generate a.exe file that can be run. Text Compressor Encryption: The best thing about the application is that it does not offer any toolbars to be configured. It is completely free of such options and you have to use it without any interference. It lets you encrypt text messages without worrying about making sure that the text in the text boxes are completely secure. It keeps tabs on the IP address from which the text is fetched, and encrypts it. Text Compressor Pricing: The program is absolutely free of charge, and is an online tool. You don't need to have an account to use it for encrypting text messages. It is only effective for sending text messages and you cannot use it for.doc or.pdf files. The software is worth a try though.
