Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender rights in Iraq

Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) rights in Iraq are limited. LGBT people are discriminated against and suffer abuse, and there have been some developments since 2005 that are to be commended. Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender discrimination LGBT Iraqis are widely discriminated against. Article 4 of the Constitution of Iraq and article 90 of the Penal Code criminalize homosexuality. Under Article 4, homosexuality is defined as any act committed "between men" or "between women" which is deemed "contrary to the normal practice of sexual behavior". Other punishable acts include homosexual acts between consenting adults and pornographic materials involving "unnatural" sex acts. Article 90 adds additional elements to the definition of homosexuality. It criminalizes any act "against nature" committed in public or private, and makes conviction punishable by up to one year in prison. Despite the fact that, in May 2008, a Constitutional Court of Iraq ruled that the criminalization of homosexuality was unconstitutional, since then police have arrested at least 17 men and three women, the most recent of which were arrested on October 11, 2015. Human rights activists have reported that gay people who are in police custody are severely beaten and tortured. Police often deny arresting LGBT people. The Iraq Human Rights Observatory estimates that 10,000 LGBT people live in the country, although this is an underestimate. LGBT activists estimate that the number of LGBT Iraqis in the country is 20,000. In a 2005 Human Rights Watch report on Iraq, it was stated that according to the Iraqi Governing Council there were 80 LGBTs in Baghdad, but that number has decreased significantly in the years following the US-led invasion and occupation of the country. In 2010, the United Nations stated that the application of the Anti-Homosexuality Law is still in practice. In addition, in 2008, The New York Times reported that: "Homosexuality is against the law, and even being suspected of having a homosexual relationship can bring a death sentence. Boys as young as 14 are taken to police stations, and if they are found in possession of pornography, the penalty is hanging. Executions are common. 'If people don't 'come out' they can be accused of being homosexual or have children they don't want to admit to, said a policeman in the capital. 'If they don't hide themselves, they won't be able to get a

I am writing a video feeder using videojs that reads data from a database table. Right now, each function is included in its own.php file and called separately when the page is loaded. For example, a video is included like this: What I want to do is be able to load the page, and have the javascript get a query and then call each individual file (the query could be different every time) as if they were dynamically generated. I've tried using include, but I can't seem to get it to work.

I've been scouring the web for the past few hours with no luck. Any suggestions? A: This is basic php and a "flipped" approach to loading js, except for one small tweak. You can put the actual php in the js file, not the other way around. `if (get_query() == "this") { echo " "; }` Q: How to make flash builder AS3 project work for AIR We have created an Application in Flash Builder for iOS, Android 5b5f913d15

Mycobacterium avium subspecies paratuberculosis (MAP) is a pathogen causing Johne's disease in livestock and paratuberculosis (PtB) in ruminants. MAP has not been detected in any free-ranging animal except for some studies on cattle. We isolated MAP from feces from a bison population in Kentucky that was submitted to the National Wildlife Research Center. Polymerase chain reaction (PCR) for MAP was also performed on the same sample. Bison PCR products and the control from the culture positive cow were digested with HaeIII and HinfI. Digestion products were resolved on agarose gels and the MAP-PCR band size of 1.3 kb was similar to that of the control. The band was not detected in three other bison tested. One positive and four negative samples were tested by culture. MAP was recovered from only the positive sample. These results indicate that MAP may be present in bison and that the species may be capable of shedding the pathogen.Le petit prince Le Petit Prince (The Little Prince) is a children's book by Antoine de Saint-Exupéry first published in 1943.
