More particularly, the present invention relates to an antenna device having a plurality of resonant elements (i.e. each resonant element corresponding to a resonance frequency), so that each of the resonant elements, which have different resonance frequencies, resonate at the same time, thereby preventing the problem of phase difference among the resonant elements. 2. Description of the Related Art In general, an antenna device such as a field superheterodyne radio has a resonance circuit composed of a coil and a capacitor and is used to receive a signal from an aerial line and perform a radio process. The resonant circuit composed of the coil and the capacitor is used to change a coil current from a high frequency to a low frequency. In other words, one end of the coil is connected to an amplifier that amplifies the signal, and the other end of the coil is connected to a low-pass filter through which a signal having a lower frequency band than the high frequency signal passing the amplifier is passed. As the coil and the capacitor are used to form the resonant circuit, the resonant circuit is also called a parallel resonant circuit. A parallel resonant circuit can perform a radio process with a different frequency depending on the size of the coil and the capacitance and is provided in most radio receivers. As the signal received in the antenna device is amplified, the amplified signal is passed through a low-pass filter, and the low-pass filter passes only a signal having a desired frequency band, which is amplified by the amplifier. In the low-pass filter, a coil or a capacitor is used to constitute a parallel resonant circuit, and a filter characteristic is obtained in the multi-stage arrangement of a plurality of parallel resonant circuits. A high frequency amplifier, a band pass filter, a low-pass filter, and so on are combined in
