But anyway I'm seeing the sport more and more, I'm learning to drive, I'm coming to understand what's going on and where the sport is heading and so on. Now that I've used some of my licence points and I've learned to ride at higher levels I am also trying to understand where I need to be. I think I'm good in the race up the front, but I don't think I'm good in a bunch sprint. So I'd like to find out how to be good in that part of the sport. Nico Sijtsma: It must be interesting, because being at the front it must be nice to be able to encourage the guys, and have a good racing line, but I think that's where you lose quite a lot of controls and everything gets hectic. It's quite a complicated situation. On the one hand you've got all these riders you're directly controlling them, but on the other hand, you don't know exactly when that rider would start, where he would be in his speed. They might be running on the back if the bunch is running strongly on the front, they might be on the front if the bunch is sitting behind, or they might be on the back, and that would just depend on what their fitness level is. So I don't know if you could really control your riders and everything would be hectic all the time. Marco Zan
