Q: PHP: File Explorer with links to files I am currently working on an application that needs to be able to manipulate files. I have no experience with File Explorer applications, but I have to implement one in my application. My question is, how do I correctly allow the user to browse through directories and pick up a file from it? A: In php you could use `file_get_contents("")` in order to download a file, or read the contents of a file.

Another option would be to use curl or similar script. This invention relates generally to a roller skate, and more particularly to a roller skate adapted for use by one hand of a user. A roller skate conventionally includes a blade provided with a front tread portion and a rear support assembly which is connected to the forward end of the front tread portion. The blade is slidably mounted upon a shaft of a forward wheel assembly, and the rear wheel assembly is rotatably mounted to the shaft of the front wheel assembly such that the rear wheel assembly is driven by the rolling contact of the front tread portion of the blade with the front wheel assembly. A rear support member is conventionally provided at the rearward end of the rear wheel assembly such that the rear support member is positioned adjacent to the foot of a user. Typically, a conventional roller skate has four such wheel assemblies, and the frame and rear support member of the conventional roller skate are relatively complex and heavy.
