The tech is the result of an extended partnership with Create Labs, a subsidiary of Konami, which has enabled the two companies to develop game features that will enable players to experience the greatest number of realistic, fluid and authentic football player movements. As part of this partnership, Create has extensively studied and analysed a large amount of real-world football to identify the best way for game developers to implement the most realistic gameplay. Create has played a major role in developing game systems such as the Player Intelligence System, the Play Call System and the Player Physics System in a quest to provide the most authentic and intuitive gameplay for fans and players. To recreate the most natural and authentic player motion, Create has actively studied the muscular, skeletal and nervous systems of humans and animals, the factors that impact their movement, the speed and power required to match the acceleration, speed and force of football, and the biomechanics of applying it to the game. Create's HyperMotion Technology is now used by Konami and has been integrated into Konami's flagship series PES. HyperMotion serves as a game feature that reflects the best of football, while maintaining the authenticity of the most realistic football. Experience the creative development of Create on FIFA eSeries, a recent addition to the FIFA series of products. Learn more about Create: Download the new FIFA 22 Today With FIFA 22, we're taking a significant step forward in creating the best football game possible. When we released FIFA 20, we introduced a series of significant innovations to the gameplay, such as Better Team Control. By combining the refined control system, the addition of a second goalkeeper and the impact of the aforementioned "crossbar" and "foul prevention technology," we have achieved the goal of providing better visuals, greater intelligence and a more realistic and engaging football game experience. The vision of the FIFA family of products is to continue to deliver the best soccer experience possible. With that in mind, we need to continue to innovate and improve the product. To do this, we need to work with partners that have the same commitment to excellence. That is why we have extended our partnership with Create, which has been developing game features that will enhance the realism of gameplay. We look forward to their continued involvement and innovation. As a result, the difference in gameplay created by the addition of HyperMotion has been incredible. HyperMotion provides

For example, if the file contained the numbers 10, 20, 30, 15, 30, 40, 30 and 35, I would want the output to be 17.0. So far I can only get the average to be 0.0
