

Complete a real-life football match under extreme conditions to gain powerful gameplay data Summary of “HyperMotion Technology” The “HyperMotion” data captured during the real-life football match has been fed to the players and the assistant coach of “Team Good Player,” and “Team Bad Player” during the offline pre-access training. As mentioned before, all of this data is used to power the FIFA 22 gameplay. Through “HyperMotion,” authentic player movements and behaviors are collected and consequently recreated for every player in FIFA 22. This data is collected through real-life football matches that are recorded by “Motion Capture” suits worn by “Team Good Player” and “Team Bad Player.” The data is then transferred to the Xbox One and PS4 using a wireless connection. When the “Motion Capture” suits are removed, the collected data is uploaded to the online servers. Player movement patterns are recreated with the use of the data collected from the real-life football matches. “Team Good Player” and “Team Bad Player” only have access to “Team Good Player’s” motion data. “Team Bad Player” only has access to “Team Bad Player’s” data. In the player editor, essential information such as face intelligence, running, jumping and diving patterns are recreated for each player. Summary of Review Data Below is a summary of data collected from the “HyperMotion” review. The right side of the table contains the data collected for all of the review participants. The left side of the table contains the data collected for “Team Bad Player.” Infra-red data * The data is representative of the players during a portion of the match. Note: The number in the parentheses represent how many times the player performed the action. Hybrid data * The data is representative of the players during the match. FIFA is the game that started it all. It’s the game that has always been played, and continues to be played, by the world’s greatest football fans. FIFA was the first sports game, with authentic football gameplay that’s been adapted to work with the latest technology. It’s the only football game where real football fanatics can enjoy the passion of the world’s greatest game. What is Football? Football is football — the world’s favorite sport. With FIFA, you’ll be feeling the passion, the players’ emotions and the glory of the best football moments from around the world. FIFA is the only football game where players can enjoy the freedom to create the perfect attack, defense and team. You'll be able to tailor the pitch to your unique playing style, and build the team with real football skills. What’s New in FIFA 22? Play it Safe Player Safety is always at the forefront of EA SPORTS FIFA’s development and we’ve made further improvements to help protect the players when they’re in the middle of a tackle, while our new Take a Shot controls aim to make the experience even easier. You can even call on a Substitute on goal to make sure you score. Real Progression Now you can finally decide when your football players age up. In FIFA 22, you can decide when your players are ready to make their real debut in the game and take on their real football league teams. Your progression system and Career mode will also keep you involved from matchday to matchday. Changes to the Player Movement Engine The speed and control of players has been improved. In addition to a new freekick model, the ability to control your players after they’ve been knocked unconscious has been improved. Players can now be given ‘sprints’ and ‘circles’ for a faster recovery once knocked out. To better enable freekicks, the collision box has been increased. Playmaker In FIFA, your playmaker is the key component in building the best squad. In FIFA 22, we’ve given your playmaker much more to worry about. They can now link up with teammates or dribble forward to create an overload — allowing you to build attacks down the middle or strike from outside the box. Take a Shot bc9d6d6daa

Professor Phillips has pioneered the use of empirical analysis to improve understanding of the law and public policy. We are certain that your clients will find Professor Phillips's report to be an invaluable tool in making their business case for arbitration. The Phillips study appears to have been written on the basis of an extensive "company-wide" survey of 100 US based companies that have used or are considering using non-judicial and arbitration procedures for resolving commercial disputes. The surveyed companies' ranges of revenue, employee size and industry reflect the general size and breadth of a cross-section of the economy. The findings of Professor Phillips's survey are: A. 63% of all companies that use arbitration found the alternatives to be too costly and time-consuming to be used. B. 28% of companies surveyed have used arbitration and have been satisfied with the procedure. C. The primary reason for selecting arbitration is that the client believes that arbitration provides a superior means of resolving commercial
