test it before purchase.Q: Saving an NSTableColumn So I'm attempting to save an NSTableView to NSUserDefaults, but when I do so, I get the following warning: Property 'columns' not found on object of type 'NSTableColumn' If I attempt to set the collection of the table to nil before setting it to NSUserDefaults, the NSTableView is still nil var tableColumns: [NSTableColumn] = [] // Save if let table = tableView.tableColumns as? [NSTableColumn] { NSUserDefaults.standardUserDefaults().setObject(table, forKey: "tableColumns") } I can't see why I'm getting this error, as tableColumns is clearly an array of the type that is passed to NSUserDefaults. A: The warning comes from your assumption that tableColumns is an instance of NSTableColumn. You're getting that warning because Swift is casting tableColumns to [NSTableColumn] when you use as? expression in your if let clause, but you have already type casted to NSTableColumn when you pass the array to NSUserDefaults, and Swift is aware of that. So the compiler assumes that tableColumns is really an NSTableColumn and warns you about your mistake.
