What is disconcerting is the Decatur Police Officers decision to keep the officer on the street even though eyewitnesses stated that he was beating and kicking the young African American man. A Decatur Police Office, one of whose identifying stripes can be seen, was seen beating the victim multiple times until other officers showed up and hauled him off. The officers have been identified as Officer Brian Mills and Officer John Mathews. The victim, Calvin Charles Cody, age 18, had a dispute with some youths on Glenridge Drive after being asked by two Decatur Police officers to move his vehicle from a tow-away zone. Cody had a valid driver's license and was obeying all the traffic laws. The Decatur police were called in because the action was occurring in a residential neighborhood. According to witness, Cody, yelling, "I'm not moving". Cody asked the officers to wait outside while he moved his car to the address that he had been directed to by the tow truck driver. When the Decatur Police Office walked back into the neighborhood a minute or so later, it is alleged that he spotted Cody walking and jumped on him. Cody was beaten and kicked about five times. Cody's mother, Earlene Cody, arrived during the beating to tell the officers to cease the assault on her son. According to an eyewitness, the Decatur Police Officer was continuously beating and kicking Cody in the head and upper body. Witnesses also heard the officer yelling "You're gonna be a punk. I'm gonna get my gun". Cody's mother later found her son on the ground bleeding profusely. Witnesses also saw the officer go into a vehicle to get a gun. According to witness, the beating was not stopped until another officer arrived. One witness said, "They were taunting him, telling him he
