I'm a new user. I am trying to find someone with extensive knowledge on breast tissue and/or nipples. I'm also trying to find out whether I am physically capable of stimulating my nipples. I would like to know whether women with "normal" breasts, would possibly be able to get aroused. Thank you. - J We cannot say with certainty that women with "normal" breasts will be able to get aroused. The truth is, very few women can touch their clitoris without having sexual arousal. However, some women are born with what is called a vulvar vestibule, which is a small, tight fold that surrounds the vulva. When a woman has a smaller body, the vestibule is squeezed which can lead to arousal. There are also conditions that affect the length or muscle tone in the area, like having surgery or having multiple sclerosis, that may also contribute to arousal. Some women are born without a vestibule. Yet, women with normal labia and normal labia minora can have arousal. If your breasts have been enlarged or enlarged nipples are present then you are most likely not capable of arousal. However, if you were to suffer a breast reduction you may be able to resume arousal. But you would still not be able to use your nipples for stimulation. You could also have arousal through stimulation of the clitoris and if you have normal labia, labia minora, and labia majora you can obtain arousal. - Dr. Sanjay Gupta Dr. Sanjay Gupta is a breast surgery specialist and director of the Breast Center, at the Cleveland Clinic.
