Martin Dominik Dzur: TGN - 07.07.2010 - 05:17:56 GAO Abstain From Banking Overpayments: GAO Obtains Information on the State of the Management of Overpayments in the U.S. Treasury and the Federal Reserve System The General Accounting Office (GAO) has recently conducted an oversight investigation of the United States Postal Service, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC), and the United States Treasury regarding banking overpayments in their commercial banking operations. Specifically, GAO: 1)reviewed information on overpayment management practices, including the frequency of overpayment management programs and assessments of the financial conditions of overpayors, at the Department of the Treasury and at the Federal Reserve Banks; 2)conducted a one-day telephone survey of selected bank and thrift management officials at the 609 large, well-capitalized commercial banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System; and 3)reviewed the financial condition of the participating banks and thrift associations, including the provision of capital support in the form of equity and debt, management controls, and their experience with overpayment problems. GAO found: The Department of the Treasury has robust overpayment management practices. Treasury's overpayment assessment program (OAP), which focuses on identifying and managing financial transactions where the U.S. government paid more than it should have, identifies overpayments at a high rate, and each year Treasury identifies multiple overpayments of large amounts. Treasury's program planning manual lists 67 internal control points and five program components, including a risk assessment analysis, key risk issues, and the creation of an overpayment plan for each overpayment assessment. Because of its size and solvency, the Federal Reserve System has lower visibility than other financial institutions to governments and taxpayers. However, the Federal Reserve System's overpayment assessment program and discussions with the Reserve Banks indicate that the Reserve Banks are taking steps to address their risk of overpayments. The Reserve Banks generally identify overpayments at lower rates than the Department of the Treasury and have recently identified overpayments of $8 billion for 2000 and $2 billion for 2001. Also, the Reserve Banks
