Tile Mapper for IOS;.The U.S. Department of Justice has sued the National Rifle Association, challenging its move to become an "association of organizations" under the 1934 federal gun control law. In a lawsuit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, the department accuses the organization of failing to comply with requirements of the federal Gun Control Act. Specifically, the lawsuit alleges that the NRA uses its "association" status to protect its Second Amendment rights to the detriment of the rights of individual members to "vote, assemble, and petition the government for redress of grievances." "The NRA's bylaws contain a blatant violation of [the Gun Control Act] because they 'deny' members their right to attend NRA meetings and vote on issues in which they have an interest," a DOJ spokesman said in a statement. "We will not stand by while the NRA continues to undermine public safety by using association status to evade federal laws." Although the lawsuit does not explicitly state the intent of the NRA to affect the outcome of elections or legislation, the spokesperson said the NRA's bylaws are contrary to the law's "theory of its mechanism for protecting Second Amendment rights." Under federal gun control laws, the NRA is required to have at least one representative from each state and/or territory, and must allow members the right to vote on issues affecting the organization. Eric Treene, a senior policy advisor at The Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence, was skeptical that the lawsuit against the NRA would have the effect that DOJ claims. "The lawsuit, as far as I can tell, is aimed at formalizing the NRA's deregulatory approach to lawmaking and governance. So the threat is more of a symbolic one, to send a message to the NRA that this is not the way to conduct business," T
