But with so much great content to choose from, how can you know which video to enjoy? In an effort to help you sort through your sea of content, we've created a handy chart to show you just what platform we think you should be watching on. Some categories are just easier to understand than others, so here's how we've arranged things for you. Look at the image above to check what device you should be watching on. Then click the device icons to the right of the text to find out which movie you should be watching on that device. So now you know what to watch on which device! Want to know what movies are available on which device? Just click on the Devices icon to the right to see which movies are available on each platform. We hope this helps you, and we look forward to seeing what you enjoy this holiday season. Please reach out to us with any feedback you may have - we're happy to hear it. We appreciate your business! Hi what makes starforce dns better for streaming than its peers?? how is it that star force dns has such reliability with online video with no lag and now i am not to shure if its star force dns or the isp, and why is star force dns better then others?? knozen, 07/16/2018 Hi what makes starforce dns better for streaming than its peers?? how is it that star force dns has such reliability with online video with no lag and now i am not to shure if its star force dns or the isp, and why is star force dns better then others?? Hi - want to see what im up to daily like my profile, also want to check out my playlists for a little change of pace. Normally I do most of my watching on my laptop with either chromecast or chromecast enabled tv. Want to know if theres a way to save my dashboard to my phone. And are starforce dns silver accounts the same as starforce dns gold? I put down $50 for silver yesterday and am ready to cancel if I am spending to much. knozen, 07/16/2018 Hi - want to see what im up 0cc13bf012
