"R" is the file name, the output file, and the raw data "raw" is next to that. You need to look at the same length of data to and from the output file and raw file. If they are the same length, you are in good shape. This is what happened with our perf executable. The output file has the same length as the raw file. [23] B. Vantyghem, "Hello, World!", first available online in 1995 ( ). The project began shortly after in 1997, when Davis began to work with the DEC Quadratus computer and was introduced to the world of telematics. Davis began designing a radio system that could be installed in a car for low cost and portability and
