TCSNET The.Q: How to do an update in mysql when someone has tried to run a query I have created a table in mysql database, and I want to make sure that whenever someone tries to run a query that accesses that table, something happens. I am new to mysql, so I am not sure how I can do this. A: If you want something to happen, every single time a user runs a query, you need to track that user's actions. You can track the login, and store that in a session, or you can track every action the user does and modify data to keep track of it as each action is performed. You will also need to do some kind of security check on whether the user has the privileges to run the given query. For more information on how to add/remove/modify rows in a table, use the following links: If you want to track someone's actions as they are taken, you can use an audit table to track that:
