Thus, vehicles are being developed that reduce or eliminate reliance on internal combustion engines. Electrified vehicles are one type of vehicle currently being developed for this purpose. In general, electrified vehicles differ from conventional motor vehicles in that they are selectively driven by one or more battery-powered electric machines. Conventional motor vehicles, by contrast, rely exclusively on an internal combustion engine to drive the vehicle. A high voltage battery pack typically powers the electric machines and other electrical loads of the electrified vehicle. The battery pack includes a plurality of interconnected battery cells that store electric charge. The battery cells are typically arranged in various series/parallel groups to provide different voltage levels. To ensure that the battery cells in the battery pack are operating at optimal capacity, various mechanisms have been developed to prevent battery cell damage and battery pack degradation. These mechanisms may utilize battery cell temperature sensors and shut off power to the battery cells when the temperature of the battery cells is outside a predetermined temperature range.Anaplastic lymphoma kinase is overexpressed in acute lymphoblastic leukemia with a t(9;11)(p22;q14) abnormality in Ph+ B-cell precursor ALL. We investigated the occurrence of anaplastic lymphoma kinase (ALK) gene rearrangements in Ph+ B-cell precursor acute lymphoblastic leukemia (ALL) in a national French registry. We found a high rate (7.7%) of ALK rearrangements. All Ph+ ALLs with ALK rearrangements were of the common B-cell type and had a high-risk clinical presentation (median age 14 years). Immunophenotyp
