Is it purely a matter of frequency? A: Na atoms have an electric charge of $+1e$ and a valence shell of 4 electrons, so there are 8 electrons (in the core, and 4 in the valence shell) that are responsible for giving the atom its overall neutrality. Thus, each atom is neutral and uncharged unless it captures an electron, in which case it becomes charged and has $1e$ of negative charge. This is explained in e.g. the Wikipedia entry on the nuclear and atomic electron shell structure. One of the reasons why bands like Mogwai, Sigur Rós, Explosions In The Sky and countless others are so revered in the world of music, is because of their uncanny ability to shape a listener's experience with
