Geologists can reveal the history of our planet by studying the Earth's crust and mantle by measuring how the rocks move in response to tectonic forces. Using the stratigraphy of rocks that has been cut by the erosion of the Earth's surface and by the action of plate tectonic forces they can also determine the patterns of up and down movements of the crust, determine the rates of plate movement and its directions and make predictions about where future earthquakes are likely to strike. Solid Earth Research Facility Geologists use many different techniques to determine the dynamics of the crust. The most common of which is to use the depth to which the volcanoes emit magma. The depth of that magma can be used to determine the density of the crust which c6a93da74d
